Attendance Requirements

- Lectures commence in Week 1 of Semester 2. Lectures are 2 hours (usually with a short break between hours).
- A student is expected to attend all class contact hours.
- A student who attends less than 80% of class contact hours without justification may be awarded a final grade of UF (Unsatisfactory Fail).
- A student who arrives more than 15 minutes late may be penalised for non-attendance.
- If a student experiences illness, misadventure or other occurrence that makes absence from a class/activity unavoidable, they should seek permission from the Course Authority. The application should be accompanied by an original or certified copy of a medical certificate or other form of appropriate evidence.
- A Course Authority may excuse a student from classes for up to one month. A student seeking approval to be absent for more than one month must apply in writing to the Dean.
- A student who has submitted the appropriate documentation but attends less than 66% of the classes/activities will be asked by the Course Authority to apply to discontinue the course without failure.
- Attendance at lectures is recorded.
- If you are more than 15 minutes late, you are deemed not to have attended. It is your responsibility to ensure your name has been marked off at each class. If you are unable to attend a lecture, it is courteous to let your lecturer know beforehand or at the earliest opportunity. If you do not attend on the day of your class presentation of your topic, you will receive no more than 50% for that assessment task.
- It is highly recommended that you attend all classes – particularly the first and last weeks of semester where important context and material will be covered in an overview and recap as well as useful information on assessment tasks. Towards the end of class in week 5 students will complete a short in-class quiz (worth 5% of the total assessment).

Essential Information for SAM Students

Summary of the Course

In this course students will develop an understanding of the legal and ethical issues that frame media production and consumption. They will work through a series of case studies that highlight these issues and their implications for professional practice and public policy. Topics examined in this course include media content regulation, freedom of speech, defamation, copyright, privacy, and ethics for media practitioners. Students explore core ethical theories in Western thought, the Australian legal system and these frameworks are used to examine specific ethical and legal issues in media practice. The course takes a theoretical and practical approach to this subject.

Course Aims

This course aims to:

1. Provide students with skills, knowledge and understanding to recognise, articulate and discuss current legal and ethical issues in the media using a range of frameworks through which the media is regulated,
2. Introduce students to kinds of reasoning and judgement in resolving some of the tensions between regulation and freedom of the media.

Student learning outcomes

At the conclusion of this course the student will be able to:

1. Critically analyse and apply ethical and legal frameworks relevant to media in Australian and international contexts
2. Identify key factors relevant to ethical and legal reasoning and be able to use relevant legal terminology, reasoning and resource materials
3. Appreciate the risks involved in publication and the consequences of not getting help and know when, where and how to seek assistance to resolve ethical and legal issues for media practitioners;
4. Develop practical strategies for dealing with competing interests and demands confronting media practitioners to incorporate ethical practice into their own work
5. Develop their own ideas for continued learning and practice in media law and ethics
Graduate Attributes

In this course students will develop the following graduate attributes:

1. An in-depth engagement with media law and ethics concepts and practice
2. The capacity for analytical and critical thinking and for creative problem solving in relation to media law and ethics
3. The ability to engage in independent and reflective learning
4. An appreciation of, and respect for diversity that reflects a deep engagement with theories of ethical and legal reasoning and decision making and judgement

Rationale for the inclusion of content and teaching approach

Given the breadth of issues and knowledge covered in this subject, much of the learning is student driven. The particular interests of students will provide examples and case studies to look at diverse areas of legal and ethical issues in the media. Much of the material is provided to enable students to explore diverse areas of law and ethics. Students in this class learn both as individuals and within a dynamic group situation which reflects the diversity of the media and communications workplace. Developing ethical reasoning skills is a similar process to developing good communication and mediation skills. The teaching methods and assessment tasks are designed to engage students in the process of ethical decision making.

The assessment tasks have been developed and refined over many years to ensure they provide students with the best possible learning experience to cover a broad range of material in a relatively short period of time. The first quiz is designed to provide feedback to students on their understanding and engagement with the early weeks’ readings and class discussions. While many students are initially concerned about giving class presentations, in all previous years/classes, there has been strong positive feedback on the value of this assignment for the learning of the whole class and to enable a very broad range of material to be covered. The Major Essay provides students with an opportunity to explore in greater depth an area of media practice using the legal and ethical frameworks introduced in class, as well as assisting them develop good research skills in an area where they may be unfamiliar. Students are required to submit an essay proposal/plan in sufficient time to enable detailed feedback from the lecturer. The Reflective Essay is particularly important for students to enable them to not simply reflect on what they learned in the course but to articulate their future approach to continued learning and to incorporate ethical practice into their own professional work. Students in past years have given very positive feedback on the usefulness of this task.

Teaching strategies

This course will be taught face to face in a two-hour lecture each week with a strong emphasis on student participation in the process of learning. Students will be actively engaged in solving problems posed by the lecturer and fellow students. Student learning will be enhanced by the use of case studies and assessment tasks. Students will work individually and in small groups on a variety of tasks. Questions are welcome during... lectures. Brief lecture notes (PowerPoint slides) will be posted on Moodle before each lecture. They are intended to help you follow the lecture rather than replacing attendance at the lecture itself.

Students are expected to participate in a range of discussions and practical exercises and to assist each other through their contributions in class presentations. Lectures are run more like tutorials. They require students to accept responsibility for their own learning and the learning of others through active participation and engagement with both the subject materials and ongoing class discussions.

All students are expected to engage on a daily basis with the current affairs and news, across different media platforms. Listening for current ethical and legal issues for the media will prepare students for participation in class discussions as well as develop their overall media, legal and ethical literacy.

A note about the Readings – Don’t Panic!

There is a LOT of material provided and much of it may be unfamiliar. It is there to assist you to follow your own interests and as an introduction to the many complex issues that comprise media law and ethics. It is designed to provide a range of material to help you focus your own research and learning. Much of it has been included to make it easier to find background material, especially if you are not familiar with the media or legal system in Australia. You are expected to familiarise yourself with some of the perspectives and source material relevant to each topic. Throughout the unit, you will benefit from returning to readings from weeks 1-4 for comparison and application. The first 3-4 weeks of the unit provide a broad approach to the overall subject before drilling down in later weeks to the specifics of different laws and codes and some specific issues. Readings from the first weeks are general in nature and you should read them for a broad understanding of the debates and issues, particularly for those of you who do not have work experience or a background in media / journalism or in law/ethics.

I have also included many links to videos and examples referred to or discussed in class so that you can understand the issues more broadly and consider them more carefully in your own time. I suggest you follow up in your own time, stories with which you may not be familiar.

Most students will NOT have a legal background and may find some of the readings challenging, whether or not English is their first language. Don’t give up! You will become more comfortable tackling them as the weeks progress. If you need any assistance, contact your lecturer early in the semester. The first 4 weeks have the most challenging readings and thereafter you will find the readings more diverse.

Read the Required Reading BEFORE class each week and then look through the Additional Readings selectively and broadly. There is a wide range of additional references for those who wish to pursue different topics in depth or at a later date.

In addition to the Required Reading, a list of useful websites and additional reading will be placed on Online to facilitate your research and to explore each topic in more depth. Students are encouraged to contribute as the semester progresses to the list of useful websites and readings.
Assessment

In order to pass this course, you must make a serious attempt at ALL assessment tasks.

Submission of Assessment Tasks

All assignments must be submitted electronically through Turnitin AND (Except for task 4) in hard copy to your lecturer to enable detailed feedback from the lecturer. You are encouraged to use Turnitin as a learning tool – feel free to submit your work to turnitin BEFORE the deadline and submitting it for assessment to obtain feedback in respect of any plagiarism concerns you may have and to assist you to achieve a high academic standard. Documents prepared in Powerpoint or similar programs should be saved as PDF’s prior to uploading.

Hard copies of work must have a completed SAM assignment cover sheet, be typed, 1½ lines spaced (or double spaced) stapled in a single bundle, and on single sided A4 paper.

For the Task 3 Class Presentation and Comment Piece – you must submit a STAPLED, SINGLE BUNDLE at the BEGINNING of the class in which you are presenting – not after you have done your presentation (that means you should have a spare copy for yourself if you need to look at your notes for the presentation).

The bundle submitted must include a copy of the comment piece posted on Moodle with any responses from other students, a copy of any material used in the presentation (eg powerpoint slides etc) and speaking notes.

Failure to comply with this requirement amounts to LATE submission and penalties will apply.

A marking rubric will be posted online at the beginning of term.

The list of essay topics will be posted early in the semester and discussed in class. Students may choose their own topic from the list or construct their own topic after consultation with and approval from the lecturer.

Practicalities

Due Date:

Task 1a: Essay Proposal & Plan

4 pm on 4 September 2014

(250 - 300 words) – Email to Lecturer with name, class time

You should have selected a topic from the list &/or examples; indicate your preliminary research identifying relevant questions and issues, laws, regulations, codes, regulators and/or ethical frameworks that you will consider; articles or writers that you will be looking at, course materials or Units that will be relevant. Set out how you propose to approach your chosen topic and what resources you have identified. This is an opportunity to get preliminary feedback on your ideas and ensure you are on track. Essay Proposals are marked satisfactory/unsatisfactory but not otherwise graded.

- The Proposal/Plan can be in dot point form.

Task 1: Major Essay

Due 4 pm on 25 September 2014 (the deadline for students rostered to present their case studies in that week may apply for a 1 week extension). Submit through Turnitin and hard copy.

Word Length – 2,500 words. Lengthy footnotes & quotes will be counted in the word limit. It is advisable to use in-text referencing – e.g. Harvard system; to make the most of your word limit).

Note: you should not duplicate material or use the same examples or material covered in other assessment tasks.

Expectations

The Major Essay is an academic essay providing you with an opportunity to explore in depth some of the broader issues underpinning media law and ethics. You should explore the required & recommended reading relevant to the topic you have chosen as well as other relevant academic and media commentators or reports (eg relevant media inquiries, or government or media position papers) and resources (eg IQ^2 debates or other media debates).

The essay should be based at least in part on the subject content from the Units in this Course and should engage with at least some of the set readings, as well as show evidence of wider scholarly research. Essays must follow proper scholarly formatting and referencing in order to avoid penalties for presentation. Actual media examples should be used in a way that substantially enhances or illuminates your argument. You should include your own views or perspectives in critiquing any writer and developing your conclusions. Mere summarising of writers will not lead to higher marks – as graduate level scholars you are expected to demonstrate critical analysis of material as well evidence of broader general and scholarly reading. As a guide of minimum expectations you should evidence engagement from the required reading from at least one Unit from this course; including where relevant, use of the textbook, 2 or more peer reviewed articles, 1-3 media articles, identification of relevant regulators/laws/codes and other relevant material.

You should demonstrate independent research of the issues – an essay which is essentially a summary based on Wikipedia, MediaWatch or similar may be assessed unsatisfactory.

You do not usually need to quote in full large sections of legislation/codes – assume the reader is familiar with them and can access them if your work is properly referenced.

Failure to properly attribute your work (including unattributed references from secondary texts) will be carefully scrutinised. A student studying ethics is expected to demonstrate a high level of academic integrity. Taking references from secondary sources and using them as if you have done the original research can be considered plagiarism where there is a failure to properly attribute those sources. If you have not already done so, familiarise yourself with the UNSW policy on academic honesty.

Assessment

Key Assessment Criteria:
The essay will be assessed primarily according to understanding of the chosen topic and relevant course material; presentation and clarity of expression; structure and strength of argument; use of media and academic texts to support argument, evidence of wider research and reading on the topic; and, originality of thought.

Due Date: Roster starts from week 4 -
A roster for presentations will be published on Moodle in week 2. Presentations will start in week 4. Those students rostered to present in weeks when another assessment task for this subject are due will be given one week extension to hand in those other tasks.

The Roster will be posted on Moodle by the end of week 2 – it is your responsibility to check that your name is on the roster and that you know which week you are presenting your comment piece in class, and which week you are rostered to respond to another person’s comment piece

Note that you must also hand in a copy of any notes or slides used in the presentation to the lecturer at the start of the class in which you are presenting. You must hand to your lecturer with a cover sheet a copy of the presentation (eg powerpoint slides) attached in a single bundle with a copy of your comment piece from Moodle. These should also be uploaded to Moodle.

Failure to comply with this requirement will mean that your work is considered submitted late until it is received in this format, with late penalties applying. The requirements of this task are about meeting a deadline for publication, and allowing your work to be rapidly marked with feedback for your learning.

Your printed work must have a faculty cover sheet, be stapled in a single bundle, on A4 paper and in a legible format and font. It should include a list of references.

You must not cover a story already covered by someone else (check with others rostered before and in the same week as yourself to avoid duplication) - unless you have prior approval from your lecturer and can demonstrate a significantly different approach or issues is covered.

You should aim for at about 5-10 references - eg 2-3 scholarly texts/references (not from Wikipedia!) and 2-3 media texts or other references and any references to codes/regulatory websites etc.

Guidelines and a list of suggestions for case studies will be posted on Moodle under the Assessment Folder for Comment Pieces. These are suggestions only and you may choose your own topic with the approval of the lecturer. As far as possible, it should involve a current or recent media story which is in English.

Please liaise with your lecturer early in the semester to ensure you are on track with this assignment.

| Self-reflection is a powerful tool in enabling students to monitor their own learning and set goals for further development. This task is designed to help students evaluate their approach and attitudes, analyse their progress in this area of study, and set goals for future learning. The aim is to promote conscious learning, with students able to apply their learning to new areas of study. |
| Write a short personal reflection describing an ethical decision you | have faced in relation to the your own practice in media in your professional, academic or personal life. You may draw on examples from your other media studies, an actual piece of work you have done or are working on, or your experience with the media in any capacity – producer, consumer, student. Critically analyse the key ethical issue(s), any relevant codes or guidelines or regulation, philosophy(s), concepts, key thinkers, or any other factors to that would help you to make a more ethical decision. How will you determine whether an ethical decision or outcome was/has been reached? Analyse which ethical framework(s) you would use in making ethical decisions in the future. You could also consider how you have developed or will continue to develop your own ideas for ethical decision making in the future. In what ways would you change your decision or decision making process in the future.

Writing in the first person (“I think…”) is acceptable.

Assessment

Key Assessment Criteria include:

- Structure & Organisation
- Presentation and formatting,
- Succinct & coherent presentation of ideas and arguments
- Conclusions supported by logical and appropriate reference to examples and course materials
- Articulation and application of own philosophical approach
- Insightful reflection on own learning and development.

A marking rubric will be posted online at the beginning of semester.

Electronic Submission

Please be aware that when you submit a UNSW course assignment online, through a facility such as Turnitin etc., you are automatically acknowledging that you have understood and abided by the University requirements in respect of student academic misconduct outlined in the Student Code Policy and Student Misconduct Procedures, both of which are available at: https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/academiclife/assessment/StudentMisconduct.html.

You are also declaring that the assessment item is your own work, except where acknowledged, and has not been submitted for academic credit previously in whole or in part. In addition, you are declaring that the assessor of this item may, for assessment purposes:

- provide a copy to another staff member of the University
- communicate a copy of this assessment item to a plagiarism checking service (such as Turnitin) which may then retain a copy of the assessment item on its database for the purpose of future plagiarism checking.
Late Submission

If your assignment is submitted after the due date, a penalty of 3% per day (including Saturday, Sunday and public holidays) will be imposed for up to 2 weeks. For example, if you are given a mark of 72 out of 100 for an essay, and your essay were handed in two days late, it would attract a penalty of 6% and the mark would be reduced to 66%. If the same essay were handed in seven days late (i.e. a penalty of 21%) it would receive a mark of 51%. If your assignment is not submitted within 2 weeks of its due date, it will receive a mark of 0. For more information on submission of late work, consult the FASS assessment protocols at https://sam.arts.unsw.edu.au/students/resources/policies-guidelines/

Take particular note of the requirements for the Comment Piece/Presentation assignment task – you are required to hand a hard copy of the comment piece AND any PowerPoint slides, notes or other material used in your presentation in a STAPLED, SINGLE BUNDLE at the BEGINNING of the class in which you are presenting – not after you have done your presentation (that means you should have a spare copy for yourself if you need to look at your notes for the presentation) with a Faculty Cover Sheet. Failure to comply with this requirement amounts to LATE submission and penalties will apply.

Extension Procedure

- A student seeking an extension should submit a SAM extension application form to the Course Authority before the due date. The form can be downloaded here: https://sam.arts.unsw.edu.au/students/resources/forms/
- The Course Convenor should respond to the request within two working days.
- The Course Convenor can only approve an extension of up to five days. A student requesting an extension of more than five days should complete an application for Special Consideration.
- If a student is granted an extension, failure to comply will result in a penalty. The penalty will be invoked one minute past the approved extension time.
- A student who missed an assessed activity held within class contact hours should apply for Special Consideration via myUNSW.
- This procedure does not apply to assessment tasks that take place during regular class hours or any task specifically identified by the Course Authority as not subject to extension requests.
- For more information, see the FASS extension protocols on the SAM policies and guidelines webpage: https://sam.arts.unsw.edu.au/students/resources/policies-guidelines/

Special Consideration

In the case of more serious or ongoing illness or misadventure, you will need to apply for Special Consideration. For information on Special Consideration please go to this URL: https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/atoz/SpecialConsideration.html

Students who are prevented from attending a substantial amount of the course may be advised to apply to withdraw without penalty. This will only be approved in the most extreme and properly documented cases.
Academic honesty and plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

- Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another’s ideas or words without credit.

- Inappropriate paraphrasing: changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another’s ideas or words without credit. It also applies to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without referencing and a student’s own analysis to bring the material together.

- Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person’s individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person’s academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person’s work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

- Duplication: submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

The UNSW plagiarism policy and procedure are outlined in these documents:

The UNSW Student Misconduct policy and procedures can be found here:
- https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/academiclife/assessment/StudentMisconduct.html

The Learning Centre also provides substantial education written materials, workshops, and tutorials to aid students, for example:
- Correct referencing practices;
- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre.
Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW makes use of the similarity detection tool Turnitin. For this course you are required to submit an electronic version of your written assignments so they may be reviewed using this procedure.

Expected Resources for students

A detailed Lecture and Reading Guide will be provided to all students prior to the commencement of lectures. Powerpoints and lecture summaries will be provided on Moodle in each unit of study, together with copies of readings and other relevant material.

Texts:

Students should have their own copy of Pearson. Earlier editions of the text will have out of date law in some areas.
Copies of the required text and additional texts are held in the UNSW Library.
Additional Unit Readings & Resources

For Each Unit of Study, there are additional required and recommended readings. Where possible these have been uploaded to Moodle under each Unit of study. Powerpoints and lecture summaries will also be posted in each Unit to assist you in both participating in class discussions and completing assignments. These are not a substitute for attending lectures but supplement the discussion in each class. A detailed reading guide will be available before the commencement of lectures with readings, focus questions, examples and suggestions for further study.

Additional Texts - you may find helpful:

A list of useful websites and other sources will be available online at the start of semester and are listed in the respective Units of Study. The following texts may also be useful for students.

- Crook, T (201) Comparative Media Law & Ethics, Routledge, New York

Please make use of the UNSW library which can be accessed at http://info.library.unsw.edu.au/web/services/services.html
Course evaluation and development

Given that media law and in particular is a fast changing and dynamic area the course is reviewed continuously to ensure relevant and up to date material is included. This course has been developed with media and legal practitioners to ensure the content and delivery is appropriate for those intending to work in media practice.

The student learning experience is important to the Faculty, course convenors and lecturers in this course. Throughout the duration of Media Law and Ethics, students are encouraged to provide either formal and/or informal feedback on their experiences of the course. This will be analysed by staff and incorporated into the semester program where possible. At the conclusion of the semester a formal student evaluation is provided to enable feedback on the course content and teaching staff. This allows for longer term student input into course design. The addition of the first assessment task in week 5 has been designed to ensure students get early feedback on their progress. This was seen as one of the shortcomings of previous years, especially for those students who were not rostered to give their comment piece/class presentation until later in the semester and had no concrete feedback on their progress.

Student responsibilities and conduct

Students are expected to be familiar with and adhere to university policies in relation to class attendance and general conduct and behaviour, including maintaining a safe, respectful environment; and to understand their obligations in relation to workload, assessment and keeping informed.

Workload

It is expected that you will spend at least ten hours per week studying this course. This time should be made up of reading, research, working on exercises and problems, and attending classes. In periods where you need to complete assignments or prepare for examinations, the workload may be greater.

Over-commitment has been a cause of failure for many students. You should take the required workload into account when planning how to balance study with employment and other activities.

Attendance

Your regular and punctual attendance at lectures and seminars is expected in this course. University regulations indicate that if students attend less than eighty per cent of scheduled classes they may be refused final assessment.
Special Consideration

You must submit all assignments scheduled for your course. You should seek assistance early if you suffer illness or misadventure which affects your course progress. For advice on UNSW policies and procedures for granting special consideration, see: UNSW Policy and Process for Special Consideration:
https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/atoz/SpecialConsideration.html

General Conduct and Behaviour

You are expected to conduct yourself with consideration and respect for the needs of your fellow students and teaching staff. Conduct which unduly disrupts or interferes with a class, such as ringing or talking on mobile phones, is not acceptable and students may be asked to leave the class. More information on student conduct is available at: http://www.my.unsw.edu.au

Occupational Health and Safety

UNSW Policy requires each person to work safely and responsibly, in order to avoid personal injury and to protect the safety of others. For more information, see http://www.ohs.unsw.edu.au/

Keeping Informed

You should take note of all announcements made in lectures, tutorials or on the course web site. From time to time, the University will send important announcements to your university e-mail address without providing you with a paper copy. You will be deemed to have received this information. It is also your responsibility to keep the University informed of all changes to your contact details.
